More strikes, in many directions. And, as men to groups leave their jobs, there are, all over the country, close to ten million others ready to take their place. If men quit jobs as fast as the NRA creates them, progress will be slow.

The country understood that the "cool code" had been adopted and accepted, and that every thing was cheerful. It reads today: "The NRA creates them, progress will be slow."

Mr. citizen of the American Federation of Labor, predict that four and a half million families will be in need of help this winter, despite employment.

President Roosevelt is at Hyde Park on his Hudson for a few days' rest. Told he was expected to make a statement on money, and some increase in the supply, he laughed.

It is safe to predict that the general public, including those engaged in business, with NOTH- ing if a reasonable increase in currency is postponed much longer.

Many business men, important men, from whom President Roosevelt does not hear, say to each other, not to him: "It is all very well to tell us how much money we want per workmen. Please tell us also where we are going to get it."

Intelligent NRA gentlemen might look into the sugar situation. It is proposed to adopt a sugar regulation compelling the United States to consume the like of the ninety million dollar sale in Chicago.

Joseph V. McKee, Tammany Hall candidate, for the past 12 hours some word from Jackies has been sought desperately, and four times he has been for announcing his political intentions each time postponed.

For nearly two weeks, by telegram and by resolution and personal appeal, his announcement said, "I have been asked to be a candidate for mayor on an independent ticket."

And, by the way, chocolate men, anxious to get sugar at the lowest price, must do some serious thinking. They import cocoa beans without duty and, in countries where those that manufacture chocolate in Switzerland and elsewhere, they have something like a 40 per cent advantage.

It would be outrageous to allow manufactured chocolate or cocoa to come in free of duty, with American workers never getting one cent from the industry.

It is as great as outrage to 'rob' American workers and thoroughly established American institutions of their share of the sugar industry, which is the manufacture.

New Bedford, Sept. 20. A holocaust of the deep, with life-savers as the victims, was narrowly averted in the fog off Cuttyhunk today, when gasoline fumes exploded and developed a 36-foot lifeboat in flames.

Turned into flaming torches when their clothes were ignited, the five men of the life-saving crew were rescued by fellow members of the Cuttyhunk Coast Guard station.

The others, who were less seriously injured, were taken to the shore by the Cuttyhunk Coast Guard station, and the boat was towed back to the shore.

Armed figuratively with fire and sword, and literally with axes and sledges, Police Supt. Martin H. King today launched a new attack on barricaded speakeasies, and chartered clubs suspected of selling liquor.

In a fiery talk in the special strong-arm squad, King ordered them to "level to the ground" every barricaded speakeasy where they found evidence of liquor selling or of maintaining a liquor subbase.

By "leveling to the ground" the new superintendent meant for his men to destroy all bars, furniture and appliances used in connection with the sale of liquor in such places.

He further ordered 24-hour vigil if necessary on suspected places in the East Bay, including the Elm Club in Huntington Ave., where yesterday the men of Capt. Perley Skilling's division took away seven barred doors.

King's latest offensive climax was a raid on a speakeasy in the East Bay, where he had been carrying on against "speaks" and alleged "charters" since a liquor sale.

Rebuffs and in some instances defiance met by his men, have aroused the ire of the superintendent.

Notwithstanding the imminent arrival of prohibition repeal, King has announced he will put every suspected place out of business, if he is possible to obtain evidence.

In giving orders to his special squad headed by Sigsbee, John H. Varland and Joseph Condon, and including Special Officers Fred Hart, John Butler and others, he told them they might have as much evidence as they need in securing evidence.

The places where the 35-hour vigil were to be maintained if necessary, included in addition to the Elm Club, a place in the East Bay, and a place in the East Bay.

HIGH COURT PLANS BIG SWEEP TO DISBAR GRAF LAWYERS

CUMMINGS SOUNDS WARNING: GOVERNMENT WILL ACT, TOO

Doctors Linked to Boston Accident Ring; Expose Is Expected to Bare Forgeries and Other Crimes

Disbarment proceedings now in preparation against 11 Greater Boston attorneys, one of them a woman, are "only a starter" in a drive by Supreme Court and the Massachusetts and Boston Bar Associations to weed out "racket lawyers," it was learned from an official source today.

The drive here, while having no official connection with that of 12 City-Gen. Homer P. Cummings and the Department of Justice, is along the same lines as the federal endeavor.

City-Gen. Cummings, in a statement in Washington, warned racketeering lawyers to mend their ways or face prosecution.

"The time has come," he said, "for a cleanup of the bar in this country. I can put my finger on a good many lawyers and on their racks. Those persons who will recognize this warning had better mend their ways."

INVOLVE DOCTORS, TOO
The Greater Boston investigation into "racket lawyers," which has been under way for several months, will also drag in more than a score of doctors, it is understood, on the allegation that they were working hand in glove with unscrupulous attorneys.

One doctor, it is declared, had 102 accident cases in a few months and worked with the same attorney on every one. A charge of soliciting cases will be made against this doctor.

According to the information, the practices of the physicians under fire is to argue patients against a lawyer, they may have retained previously and saving the patient in the lawyer with whom the doctor works.

FORGERIES CHARGED
A long list of forgeries by attorneys under fire has been compiled by the investigators. It is understood, as a result of which forgeries, the names of the "racket lawyers" have been rubbed off thousands of dollars which had been sent to the attorneys' pockets.

Under a system of retainer by insurance companies now in vogue for about two years, the selling company makes out a draft stipulated to be signed both by the plaintiff and his attorney.

The investigation is declared to have revealed that certain "racket lawyers" have been receiving these drafts, signing their own names and then tracing specimen signatures of their clients. The draft is

New Crime Wave to Ride on Beer Tax

Chicago, Sept. 29 (AP)—Crime, instead of being on the wane, said Col. Caffra, director of research at the state's Western State Penitentiary, is on a new wave, and riding the crest will be kidnappings, bank holdups, mail robberies and industrial racketeering.

"Federal and state governments are wild for new income," he said. "They picture the return of liquor as filling an empty gap in the receipts. And they're going to see liquor, as they have beer, as a heavily taxed commodity with no limit to operate."

Roosevelt in Bank Study

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 29 (INS)—President Roosevelt minutely studied the progress of his banking and credit expansion program today as he rested in his country home.

The President will settle down to writing the important speech he will make before the National Catholic Congress in New York next Wednesday night. It is this talk which the President's closest friends believe will be used by the executive to answer seriously demands for inflation.

In addition to an expression on inflation, the Wednesday night speech will probably include the details of the new credit expansion program. Mr. Roosevelt formulated this, designed to free billions of deposits in closed banks and generally boost credit, as an indirect inflation program. He expects it to provide the needed impetus to send new financial blood through stagnant economic veins of the nation.

Man with Blank Mind Pays Rum Fine

Although he said his mind was as blank as a page, a man who had no recollection of the day he had an accident, Joseph P. O'Callahan, 34, of 111 St. John St., New York, admitted in Quincy court today he recalled having done some drinking. He was fined $50 for operating under the influence of liquor, and $10 for being drunk.

O'Callahan, who claims to have been well educated, was found guilty of going away after an accident, in which the remains of a car of Oakhurst St., Rochester, suffered a fractured skull.

Stern's Wife Has Jury and Crowd in Court Sobbing for Love

Broker's Pleas for Her "Rival," Love Nest Rental Related

New York, Sept. 29 (INS)—Emotion with extra handkerchiefs everywhere concerned went back today to the courtroom of Justice Samuel Hoffstadt to hear some of the details of the alleged love affair of Mrs. Ruth Erlanger Nathan for which Mrs. Helen Vogel Stern is asking $100,000 worth of heart pain.

It was a testimony which broke up in supreme court last evening.

Mrs. Stern sobbed under cross-examination by George Whitehead, counsel for Mrs. Nathan. Mrs. Stern, Mrs. Stern's attorney, wept unashamedly. A jurymen wiped away a tearful eye or two and there was an association of sniffles from the smartly-dressed, socially prominent audience.

Whitehead's examination was directed at the charge that Mrs. Stern made her husband's life a "living hell," that she closed him out of the house with a paper notice.

The plaintiff, who claims Mrs. Stern, said she was not sure that she had a divorce action for love of her son.

HOOPER GOLD TO JOB OF AIDING JEWISH

Replies to the League on Post to Help Refugees

Geneva, Sept. 29 (AP)—Herbert Hoover has given a discouraging, but not definitely negative, reply to a suggestion that he handle the problem of Jewish refugees from Germany, reports to the League of Nations assembly said today.

Holocaust introduced a resolution asking the council to form a plan for helping the refugees.

It was learned that American interest in the problem had been pointed out by President Hoover's secretary, as to whether he would accept the leadership of a commission in case the League decided to create one.

Richard Sanders of Sweden suggested the assembly refer the Jewish question to a committee for discussion as a non-urgent problem.

The jury's verdict in the case of the two defendants, who include Harvey Bailey and Albert Eklund, was the most notorious disgrace in the country, will be the first important verdict reached by the Roosevelt administration in the case of the underworld.

The trial grew out of the kidnapping and $200,000 ransom of Charles P. Trachsel, Oklahoma City oil millionaire.

After the various government attorneys had completed their closing arguments to the jury today, Federal Judge Edgar B. Vaughn will deliver extensive instructions to the jury.

Judge Vaughn is expected to interpret for the jury the federal kidnapping act, the so-called "Lindbergh law" passed by Congress which makes it a felony punishable by life imprisonment to transport a kidnap victim across state lines, the punishment is irrespective of the ransom involved or whether the life of the victim has been jeopardized.

MYSTERY MAN PROCLAIMS HIMSELF AS LOMASNEY'S HER

STRANGER IS IN FIGHT ON WILL OF MAHATMA

John F. Beretty Says He Should Be One of Beneficiaries

Out of the past of the late Martin L. Lomasney today appeared a mysterious self-proclaimed heir to join in the contest of the West End political leader's will instituted by his brother, Joseph F. Lomasney.

Under the name of John F. Beretty, his counsel, Atty. Bernard F. Kilian, filed an appearance for him before Judge Arthur W. Dolan in Suffolk probate court.

Kilian refused to discuss the identity of his client, and no one else could be found who had even heard of the stranger.

The unexpected and unexpected entrance of the mysterious stranger into the will contest a week after it was started by the late Mahatma's brother, caused a flurry in the courtroom.

For a time it was the chief topic of conversation, extending in interest the Mayberry disbursement proceedings.

Beretty was not named in the will of the late political leader, which left sums to finance monuments to the late Archbishop John F. Williams, and the late Mayor Hugh O'Brien, a $100,000 monument for the Lomasney estate in Holy Cross cemetery, and a memorial volume portraying his civic career.

Cash bequests were made to surviving relatives and close friends, the largest going to his brother, Joseph, in the form of $2500 in cash and an income of $3000 yearly.

Joseph Lomasney entered suit to break the will on the ground that the estate was worth more than $100,000 instead of the $200,000 or more that was found.

On motion of his counsel, Atty. William Flaherty, Judge Dolan extended to Oct. 10 the time to file a motion, frame jury issues. This was assented to by Atty. Nathan E. Hall, counsel for Joseph Lomasney, and the superior court who is trustee of the estate.

Kilian refused to discuss the identity of his client, and no one else could be found who had even heard of the stranger.

The unexpected and unexpected entrance of the mysterious stranger into the will contest a week after it was started by the late Mahatma's brother, caused a flurry in the courtroom.

For a time it was the chief topic of conversation, extending in interest the Mayberry disbursement proceedings.

Beretty was not named in the will of the late political leader, which left sums to finance monuments to the late Archbishop John F. Williams, and the late Mayor Hugh O'Brien, a $100,000 monument for the Lomasney estate in Holy Cross cemetery, and a memorial volume portraying his civic career.

Cash bequests were made to surviving relatives and close friends, the largest going to his brother, Joseph, in the form of $2500 in cash and an income of $3000 yearly.

Joseph Lomasney entered suit to break the will on the ground that the estate was worth more than $100,000 instead of the $200,000 or more that was found.

On motion of his counsel, Atty. William Flaherty, Judge Dolan extended to Oct. 10 the time to file a motion, frame jury issues. This was assented to by Atty. Nathan E. Hall, counsel for Joseph Lomasney, and the superior court who is trustee of the estate.

With a big cake, decorated with 102 candles, Mrs. Angila P. Worthley, oldest resident of Somerville, stars off the celebration of her 102nd birthday today. Mrs. Worthley is still very active, and in the last two months has made several visits to the city, and in the last two months has made several visits to the city.

102 Candles Glean on Cake for Lady in Somerville

From New Hampshire and all sections of Greater Boston, friends and youngsters moved today in ward West Somerville to do honor to Granville Worthley.

They are doing honor to Granville Worthley, because Granville Worthley is 102 years old today and is the eldest resident of Somerville in order of years.

GATHER FOR CELEBRATION

Granville Worthley is Mrs. Angila P. Worthley's husband, who was born in Goffstown, N. H., on Sept. 29, 1831, the daughter of Henry J. and Rebecca Plumer, and who now lives with her daughter, Mrs. Sarah A. Rowell, at the Somerville address.

Today and tonight her two daughters, her son, and all her grandchildren, as well as relatives and friends from Manchester, Littlefield and Bedford in New Hampshire and from various sections of Greater Boston, are at her home at the home of Mrs. A. Lowell Blake in Beverly Farms, tomorrow. Miss Amy Lang, Miss Gwendolyn Laverne and Miss Susan Means will share honors with her.

Mrs. Blake Hostess for Debutantes

Miss Caroline Hunnewell and her mother, Mrs. Walter Hunnewell of Commonwealth ave., Westchester, Beverly Farms, have been taking advantage of the in-between season to do a little fall shopping in New York. They returned last night.

Miss Hunnewell is one of the four debutantes to be honored at a tea dance at the home of Mrs. A. Lowell Blake in Beverly Farms, tomorrow. Miss Amy Lang, Miss Gwendolyn Laverne and Miss Susan Means will share honors with her.

Yeggs Make Error, 'Rob' Closed Bank

Shubert, Neb., Sept. 29 Yeggs cracked the safe of a closed bank here by mistake and got no loot. The burglars entered the Farmers State Bank and at their leisure cut through the top of a safe. Finding it empty they opened another in which were paper notes and $6 in currency. They continued the cash.

Harvard Salary Cut Feared in Conant Finance Probe

Harvard's hired help the $12,000-a-year full professors and the $6,000-a-year scrubwomen were approximately 4500 persons, President Conant announced that the financial operations of the university as one of the first major undertakings of his administration.

Although the president declared that he was doing it to acquaint himself with huge expenditures, there were persistent rumors that the survey was the forerunner of a big financial shake-up which may even embrace a salary slash, hereafter unheard of at Harvard.

CAKE SCUFFS AT CHANCE FOR 'GOOD-GOODY' TALK

Brighton Candidate for Mayor Explains Absence From Faneuil Hall Where Six Rivals Speak

"Issues rather than personalities is what I am campaigning on."

In this terse sentence, Daniel H. Coakley today explained his reason for not attending the big meeting staged at Faneuil Hall under the auspices of the Young Democratic Club.

With the exception of Coakley, every other Democratic candidate for mayor was present and addressed the meeting. Gov. John F. Fitzgerald, Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., and an unexpected former Mayor Malcolm K. Nichols and former State Auditor Alvin H. Cook, the remaining two Republicans in the race, ignored the invitation.

"I don't believe in standing up and telling what a good fellow I am," Coakley elaborated. "I'm not one of those fellows who, in the fair tale, 'stick in the thumb, pulled out a plum and said what a big boy am I'."

"If it's a debate, then that is a different matter. But, as I said before, this was a good-guy affair. Under this invitation I would have been required to stand up and say what a wonderful fellow I am. I would rather let some one else say that about me. I can't see any value in such meetings."

The appearance of each of the candidates, marking for some of them their first appearance on the stump in the campaign, was greeted with enthusiasm by the 600 men and women in the audience.

School Committee member William A. Reilly, the first speaker, said that if the name of the club meant anything it meant an endorsement for him, the youngest in the mayoralty scrap.

He told of the unusual honor which his associates gave him by twice making him chairman of the school committee.

Reilly pointed out that the school budget was reduced from $25,000,000 in 1930 to $16,000,000 in 1953 without curtailing any of the educational facilities.

FOLLY REHEARSER'S RECORD

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley recounted his long record in the public service as member of the Legislature, the governor's council and in his present position. He played the Republican Legislature for its manipulation of the city charter in the interest of getting a Republican mayor.

"The trick that worked eight years ago when Nichols was elected over a divided Democratic, he declared, wasn't successful this year."

Candidate Mansfield, former state treasurer and co-president of the Massachusetts Bar Association, told of 97,000 votes polled four years ago, against Mayor Curley, the greatest number of votes ever received by a Democratic candidate.

Taking a fling at the big list of candidates in the present contest, he asked where they were four years ago when he called for courage to oppose the present mayor.

He charged that Mayor Curley is behind the Nichols candidacy.

Senator Henry Parkman, Jr., the only Republican candidate present, demanded an end to the "Curley-Nichols machine."

"That machine hold must be broken," the tall Back Bay orator declared.

PARKMAN CHEERED

He drew a round of applause when he stated that although a Republican, he voted to the Senate for the run-off primary for Boston.

Former Congressman Joseph P. O'Connell chided the young Democrats sponsoring the meeting for inviting members of opposite party to the forum. Taking a fling at the Nichols administration, he said former Governor Fuller was right when he said that he had not only an elected mayor during his incumbency but a "morning, afternoon and evening mayor as well."

Judge Michael H. Sullivan contended that the problem confronting the people was how to regain their government. He bitterly scored an election system which allows a mayor to be king for four years, answerable to no one, at the end of which he simply walks out as if from a theater. He advocated the return of the recall provision which was scrapped when the charter was amended so that a mayor could not succeed himself. Since that time, he said, taxes have doubled.

"If that won't make you think," he said, "I don't know what will."

'O'Donnell Abo' Sung at Rally

Most famous of old Irish battle songs was Red Hugh 'O'Donnell' hymn of last—'O'Donnell Abo.' To its tune many a lusty, low landed on a strident pace during Red Hugh's long warfare, but now it's the theme song in whose strains the O'Connell mayoral campaign slogan are being poured out.

An admirer in County Cork sent the song to the former Congressman and it was heard for the first time yesterday at a rally of the O'Connell-Mayor women's organization.

Well, Red Hugh may not care, but what will the Foley and the Sullivan and the Reillys say to this?

Lindy Off on Mystery Hop to Estonia

Moscow, Sept. 29.—After four days of sight-seeing and study of Soviet aviation, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh took off shortly before noon today for an unannounced destination, which was believed to be Tallinn, the capital of Estonia.

The Lindberghs arrived on Monday from Leningrad and afterwards were busy in a round of trips, functions in their honor, and inspection tours of schools, museums and aviation plants.

In addition to being guests of the Soviet travel agency, the Lindberghs have received so many presents, valuable trifles as well as historically, during their stay that they were unable to carry them away with them. They requested the gifts be shipped to New York.

Col. Lindbergh said he did not intend to land again in Russia during the present tour, which has taken them on an aerial mapping flight over the north Atlantic and northern European nations.

KOO FEARS WAR DUE TO LEAGUE

Geneva, Sept. 29 (AP)—All signs in the Far East point to a major conflict in the next few years, Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese minister to France, said today before the League of Nations assembly in denouncing the Japanese invasion of Manchuria.

"Ominous clouds are rising," he asserted. "The race for armaments has begun with huge naval and air maneuvers, fleet concentrations, fortifying of bases, and enormous increases in war expenditures."

He intimated the absence of effective action by the League placed premium upon aggression and strengthened those who believe might is right.

Widow Cricket Mourns Loss of Mate

Yellow Springs, O., Sept. 29.—There has been a domestic tragedy in the office of M. Elizabeth McCalmont, associate personnel worker at Antioch College. A lady cricket on the hearth has ceased her chirruping.

This ad followed in the college paper: "Wanted—A husband, by a widowed cricket. Gentleman cricket desired with congenial tastes; good family background; love of domestic life, children and music more important than financial stability."

2ND HURRICANE NEARS MEXICO

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 29 (INS)—Another hurricane spawned Eastern Mexico today as relief workers sought to repair the destruction and bury the victims of the weekend storm that ravaged this once thriving oil port.

A weather forecast issued by the Vera Cruz weather bureau told of a new tropical disturbance which appeared in the Caribbean Sea and was affecting the southeastern zone of the Gulf of Mexico.

Bringing a new threat to the devastated Tampico area, according to the bureau, the disturbance was moving slowly to the west.

Refugees from the last storm, meanwhile, continued to enter the city from surrounding areas which suffered heavily while rising floods added to the difficulties of relief and expatriation work.

SHOE LEADERS SEE OUSTER OF GOODWIN

Gov. Ely's decision to remove Frank A. Goodwin from chairmanship of the Boston Finance Commission followed a demand for just such action by the Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Brockton. It was revealed today.

The demand was made in a letter sent the governor on August 20 by E. A. Gray, secretary of the association.

In this letter, Goodwin was criticized for his activity in organizing the Brotherhood of Shoe Workers & Allied Craftsmen which, with its controversy with the old established shoe manufacturers' association, is held responsible for the present strike of shoe factory employees.

Goodwin has demanded a hearing on the governor's announced intention to remove him from chairmanship of the commission to the stage of ordinary member, and his hearing Gov. Ely will grant on Wednesday.

The strike status remained unchanged today with leaders disappointed by word that the National Labor Board will probably not decide until next week whether the union's case shall continue their contracts with the shoe and shoe workers union.

"We have no intention in defining Mr. Goodwin's course as unsatisfactory," the Brockton manufacturers informed the governor.

"The letter termed Goodwin 'outraged and advised' at a public hearing at Washington in seeking to bring about national recovery from the depression."

Sixth Suspect Held in Truck Hijacking

Richard W. Wain, 22, of Abington, was arrested at his home early today, the sixth man accused in connection with the hijacking of a $500 truckload of cigarettes aimed at the gates of state prison in Charlestown last week.

He is a brother of a brother of James H. Wain, Jr., of the same address, arrested previously. He was turned over to Charlestown police.

Mrs. Emily Roosevelt Cooke.

Reno, Nev., Sept. 26.—The presence in Reno for divorce purposes of another member of the Roosevelt family was discovered here in Mrs. Emily Roosevelt Cooke, fifth cousin of the President and of the late Theodore and sixth cousin of the President's wife.

She has been here about three weeks, it was learned, and plans to file suit in about three weeks against Archibald M. Cooke.

Mrs. Cooke is better known as Emily Roosevelt and is especially well known in musical circles as an operatic singer. She has sung as prima donna in Chicago and Philadelphia and sang several roles in the German opera at the May Festival Opera in Cincinnati this year. She is well known in Connecticut as a vocal soloist.

Pope Gives Blessing to Jobless Pilgrims

Vatican City, Sept. 26.—Pope Pius XI told a group of 400 unemployed men that "if the Divine Providence should wish to be deprived of work he and it for your own good."

The unemployed made a pilgrimage to the Holy See from Great Britain to see the Pontiff before leaving.

"Being without work," His Holiness comforted them, "you therefore will be all the more appreciative of work when it returns. But the fact that you are lacking in material work does not prevent you from doing spiritual work."

Apple Pie Is Choice of Air Speed King

Kansas City Sept. 25.—Col. Royce Turner, transcontinental air speed record holder, flew in from the West last night and put in a double order for his favorite dish—apple pie—at a restaurant. He then asked the waitress:

"What if you consider me mad if I asked for calfish for dinner?"

She would, Turner took pains to point out.

Tired of Men, Girl With the Perfect Kiss Ends Her Life. Why the Hungarian Beauty No Longer Cared to Live, an Illustrated Article in The American Weekly, The Magazine Distributed With the Oct. 1st Boston Sunday Advertiser.

PELLEY ARKED BY APATHY TO HIS SILVER SHIRTS

This is the eleventh and last of a series of articles exposing the Silver Shirts, a pseudo-savior of the Ku Klux Klan, and most likely to expose his gospel—at $10 per year by stirring racial prejudice as well as promising to solve present economic difficulties by establishing in the United States in 1945 a theocratic super-state, whose form has been dictated from beyond the grave.

William Dudley Pelley, national commander of the Silver Shirts—the Christian Militia of the New Ku Klux Klan, is disappointed.

The South and Massachusetts, the two areas that he selected as most advanced (?) and most likely to espouse his gospel—at $10 per year, have turned a deaf ear to his polemics.

Today he has a college without students in Asheville, N. C., and an organization virtually without members in his native Massachusetts.

But the Lyon-born veteran of a Boston newspaper's staff is not without hope for his Silver Shirts. As he himself has written, the "Christ Government" and the new economies are inevitable.

SET BACK AND WAIT

It will make no difference how the Pelleys and the Shirts will and wait against them. In less than 10 years they will triumph. He assures his members of that.

So one might think it natural if he relaxed his campaign to spread the new domination, if nothing of the sort was predetermined, why not just sit back and wait for things to happen—especially when the public is so unresponsive, so blind to its own certain salvation?

But that is not the Pelley attitude. Today he is still "nowhere in the Middle West," according to his business manager, H. F. Seiber, there may be discussions in the leadership of the new "Christian Militia," Arthur Aljes—protestant converts to the Shirts—may be repudiated, but the work must go on and in secret.

NOT CREDULITY—SIO

So Seiber refuses to disclose Pelley's plans. Nor will he give any information about the Silver Shirts in the South.

He is indignant at suggestions that the people between the Great Lakes and the Mississippi are more credulous than their fellow-citizens in the East and in the South. It is not a matter of credulity. It is a question of vision and foresight and faith—worth $10.

Is this an indication that the membership drive is not moving, as had been hoped? Is unfavorable publicity damping the flow of $10 bills?

Pelley Mr. Pelley's "clairaudience" goes far beyond the grave have not told him that. We don't know, but we do know he would define that word "clairaudience" for us. It sounds well. We'd like to use it our share if we knew what it meant.

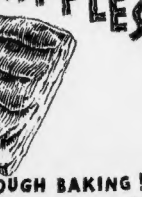

Vermont Certifies Dry Repeal Vote

Wilmington, Sept. 26.—The roll of States that have officially notified the State Department of ratification of the prohibition repeal amendment has reached 23, with receipt of a certificate from Vermont.

Eight other States have elected repeal delegates, but their conventions have not yet been held, so that the count stands at 21 states for repeal and none against, with 28 needed to adopt the repeal amendment.

POWERFUL NAVY PLEA DRAWN

Award the U. S. Transport Henderson, off San Diego, Cal., Sept. 29—An order 30-year building program to give the United States a navy second in none has been drafted by the Navy Department and will be submitted to Congress in January.

It calls for the construction of 275 ships by 1952, at an average annual expenditure of $56,160,000. The first of these ships would be laid down in 1935. By accelerating construction in the first four years, the navy would reach London treaty strength by 1935.

After that, the building would taper off and by an orderly system of replacement the navy would be maintained at substantial treaty limits throughout the entire period.

The program includes retention of battleships and is based on the assumption the London treaty may not be renewed by the three signatory powers, the United States, Britain and Japan.

The plan provides for the construction of the following: 20 battleships, eight aircraft carriers, 25 aircraft gun cruisers, 25 aircraft gun destroyers, 20 destroyers, and 50 submarines.

Pickets Watch Two Brooklyn Shops

Brooklyn, Sept. 29.—The status quo in the shoe strike remained unchanged today, with strikers concentrating on the plant of the W. E. Dunlop Shoe Co., which with that of E. E. Taylor Co. is still operating.

Strikers and their leaders were disappointed this yesterday when word was received from Washington of a further delay in the decision on whether the manufacturers shall continue their contracts with the Foot and Shoe Workers' Union, probably will not be made until next week.

N. Y. Lawyer Dies

New York, Sept. 29.—Dickinson W. Richards, senior member of the law firm of Richards and Afford is dead here. He was 74 and a native of Boston.

The Voice of Broadway

By LOUIS SOBOL

Out of Their Post!

Katie Brice hopped out of a $35 a week job as an enchanting soprano in "College Days," where she sang Irving Berlin's "Sadie Solome," to a $75 week berth with Flo Ziegfeld in the "Follies of 1934." The contract was printed on stiff calendar paper and she wore it out showing it to friends so Ziegfeld gave her another contract and she wore that out, too. In all she had seven contracts that season—but they all called for the same figure—$75.

Jack Pearl's first stage engagement was with Herman Timber in "School Days." Timber promised him $20 a week but gave him $15 and fined him 50 cents every time he broke a regulation. At the end of the season, however, he paid him an additional $14 in a lump sum, the total of the fines, explaining that he merely wanted to point out to him that he had erred 28 times. Pearl belonged to the famous Dialect Table in the Hunting Room of the Astor—the limited company included besides Pearl, Sam Bernard, Joe Weber, Lew Fields and Louis Mann. The waiter was a haughty, malicious Englishman—at the start. At the end of a season he was handing them this: "Piz, gentlemen, how about you should gift me your border!" That's how the gag, in all its variations, originated.

With King's first stage engagement came through seeing the circus. She went home, took a walk around the pasture on the broad back of the aged farm house and later, hung by her knees from the limb of a yew-tree in the back yard. She decided she wasn't cut out to be a circus queen and changed her ambition after seeing a few of Mr. Pinkie's drawings. She is still an excellent artist.

Albertina Rauch was premiere ballerina at the New York Hippodrome at the age of 16. George White was the first Broadway producer to use a unit of his wife in his "Sensational."

Paul Whiteman, when the war broke out, weighed 300 pounds but wanted to be an aviator. The examining officer sent him over to the blimp school instead—but even he decided the risk was too great. So Paul finally got the Navy where they have big boats. The Navy almost kicked him out when he learned that special uniforms had to be built for him.

Morris Kaufman happened up his body and face in black ink at a party.

FORD STRIKERS IN NEW DRIVE

Edgewater, N. J., Sept. 29 (ENB)—With the seeds of strike planted in the Ford Company assembly plant here at Chester, Pa., strikers left today to organize their driver in Buffalo and Detroit.

This Chester men, 1000 strong, spent the night in their suits. They departed when assured that no more than 300 of nearly 1500 employees of the Ford plant here had reported for work today.

It had been planned to go on once to Buffalo and Detroit after negotiating the Edgewater women in their sympathetic waitlist; but the leaders decided to return to Chester because of lack of funds. They planned to stop at Newark for a demonstration in front of NRA headquarters where a committee of 14 was to meet. It was in an attempt to mediate the strike.

Mummified Head of Henry IV Shown

Paris, Sept. 29 (AP)—A mummified head, which is claimed to be that of Henry IV, is in possession of a Montmartre photographer, named Bourdais, the novelist Paul Reboux writes in the current issue of "Le Figaro."

The photographer bought it at an auction in 1911, for three francs. The general cast of the countenance, a mole, and other marks, Reboux writes, have convinced the owner that it is really that of the king who was assassinated May 31, 1610.

Since the desecration of the royal tomb during the French Revolution the head has not been accounted for.

Policeman Fired for Disobedience

For disobedience and absence without leave, Patrolman James V. Stanton of the Hyde Park station today found himself out of a job on orders of Police Commissioner. Stanton, the commissioner refused him another chance after Stanton had pleaded for it at a hearing Tuesday.

Soda Flip Foils Youthful Bandits

Pittsburgh, Sept. 29.—W. A. Maxwell, druggist, had too much on his "last one" for three youths who tried to hold up Wences' pharmacist. He hurled a half full soda glass at the "bandits," who fled, footless.

The Keyhole on the News

Protection

Joseph Zulian, nationally known authority on rats, has large fruit trees surrounding his Oak Island home. Recently, on returning from the city, he saw four boys "on high" in the trees, their pockets bulging with apples and pears.

They saw Mr. Zulian, who is pretty amiable, just about the time he apled them. They came out of the trees as if they had been drilling for years, but they were unfortunate in their first springs and bumped into each other. Apples and pears were spilled everywhere.

Just a moment, boys, called Mr. Zulian, "you don't have to run! Stay where you are. I simply don't want you to harm the trees."

They stood looking at him, warily.

"Kin we have this here fruit," said one of them, finally, pointing at the ground.

"Sure," they were told.

"Come on, you guys," said the spokesman, "grab this fruit again, and if it's over, bump into these trees I'll brain you."

Vagabond Lover

William Roderick, high school instructor, likes smart pupils but has no patience with a snappy, recently in a history review a young windy voice and unaccustomed as he was to public yawning, delivered himself of a pun weighing slightly less than a ton.

Question: "What valley played a vital part in Civil War battles?"

Answer: "Rudy."

Not result: The word "crosses," written 300 times.

Bridgework

There is nothing to guarantee a Maine bridge in these garious days but recently three well known Bostonians proved that a skillful hand need not depend upon the handicap of others.

Joseph Tomassello, contractor and recent candidate for mayor, Brother Gilbert, who inspired Babe Ruth in his earliest baseball ambitions and struggles, and John J. Murphy, mayor of Somerville, were returning from Maine where they came to a bridge which had lost all interest in its work. It cracked at the very approach of their heavy car and when the wheels were moved onto its rickety boards there was a sound which approximated "ouch."

The passengers were soon out of the car and quickly realized that the bridge would never hold the car. Off came coats and top hats and in a brief time the old bridge had thrown up its hands with a good sound underpinnings of rocks, logs and wedged boards. It whistled slightly as the car passed on its way.

Rebuke

Herbert Carleton Schulman, seven-year-old son of Attorney Charles Schulman and Judge Rudolph Schulman had a bad moment with a baby-sitter last Sunday.

Herbert is a straight from the shoulder conversationalist and nothing attracts his usually excellent manners so much as an amiable stranger, who gives him an approving whack on the head and says little monologues.

"Well, what is this little man going to be when he is a drawl big manny," said the well-intentioned visitor.

"Sensible," said Herbert, yanking his hat on violently and leaving the house.

This Girl Freshie Thinks College Is a "Speak"

Some of the younger generation of college girls, it seems, have their own ideas about hours for entertaining gentlemen and what chapters are.

A written examination on the "Freshman Bible," a book of rules and regulations for students at Wheaton College, for women revealed that one freshman's idea of late may men be entertained in the "house" another freshman replied "Men may be entertained in the houses only until 6 a. m." It happens that the college rules say that men may be entertained only until 10 p. m.

Most of the girls knew the rules, however, only 10 failing to pass the quiz.

Beat well and add $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp. vanilla. Drop like small marbles on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven until the cakes will part. Place a pecan meat in the center of each and bake for two minutes at 350° W. A perfect tea or card party cake.

Turn out on a floured board, and knead enough flour into the dough to make it the consistency of biscuit dough. Roll out as for biscuits and cut in small squares with a knife and bake on a well greased pan. Let cool. Remove from oven, and top each one with butter and serve at once.

2-60 IN BAKER'S 15 U. S. PLANES
JOB SAVED GUARD KELLY

The troubles of the trojan man James H. "Two Gun" Baker of Quincy, as far as his job is concerned, were over when he was still has a martial ring to his voice.

Mayor Ross' ultimatum that Baker get in touch with him, expired today, but Baker's lawyer, J. B. Speers, did not appear. Atty. B. R. Tucker, his counsel, arrived at the city jail today and conferred with City Solicitor Charles R. Young.

An agreement was reached that Baker is to continue on his big three months' leave of absence

Memphis, Sept. 9 (INS)—Removal of George "Machine Gun" Kelly, notorious desperado, and his wife, Kathryn, to Oklahoma City, will take place some time today or late tonight.

Members of the fifteen machine-gun armed army soldiers who were sent to the city jail to guard Kelly, went a plane in which the Kellys were flown to Oklahoma City to stand guard against any possible participation in the Urechel kidnapping.

Local authorities were claiming no chance of a possible attempt to on his promise to send $20 weekly liberate the desperado.

MANSFIELD MAKES BIG GAIN ON FOLEY IN STRAW BALLOT

District Attorney Still Holding Lead;
O'Connell Climbs to Third Place;
Sullivan Speech Effective

Frederick W. Mansfield, former state treasurer, took the lead for the first time today in the day's return in the Straw Ballot Test Election for mayor of Boston, conducted by the Evening American and Sunday Advertiser among registered Democratic voters.

He pulled up to within 536 votes of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley in the total vote cast today.

A total of 196,492 were counted and tabulated at the result of the day's balloting while the total now is moved up to 8330.

The day's returns gave Mansfield 4471 votes, Foley 414. Thus, for the first time the day's results were captured from the District Attorney.

Another interesting change took place in the Straw Ballot Test Election. Former Congressman Joseph P. O'Connell displaced Chairman Theodore A. Glynn of the State Commission in third place. O'Connell polled 141 votes to 9 for Glynn, the abrupt decline of the latter being accounted for in his announced retirement from the race for Mayor.

HOW THEY STAND

The ballots for the day came in from every ward of the city save ward 3, the West End. Mansfield made his conspicuous showing in wards 13, 15 and 16, Lincoln, 18, Hyde Park, and 23, West End.

The latest returns in the Straw Ballot Test Election for Mayor of Boston were as follows:

William J. Foley	9217
Frederick W. Mansfield	4471
Joseph P. O'Connell	141

Prisoners Loot Sheriff's Till, Rum Store

Barnstable, Sept. 20—Two jail trustees who were supposedly repairing the roof last Sunday, broke into the sheriff's office in the courthouse and stole $25 and a five-gallon can of molasses. Sheriff Laughlin M. Crocker reported today after an investigation.

The trustees had admitted their guilt, he said. They were Thomas Remick, 25, and Alfred C. Backus, 31. Remick's time was to have been up October 6, but with Backus he must face charges of breaking and entering.

Sheriff Crocker's 15-year-old son, Junior, feeding hens in the jail yard, caused discovery of the break when he heard the jangle of liquor in the jail yard where the men were pouring the molasses into a pail.

The sheriff found several bottles filled with the liquor and the can buried behind the barn. The trustees admitted they had intended smuggling the liquor into the jail.

Nazis Parade Jewish Doctor and Fiancee

Landenberg-Warthe, Germany, Sept. 20 (DNB)—A Jewish doctor named Aaronson was forcibly paraded through the streets today with his Christian sweetheart and her mother.

The letter was held up to public ridicule because she was charged with repeatedly ignoring Nazi warnings and had declared she was proud of her daughter's attachment.

Auto Park Prowler

One man will be arraigned in Municipal court today on a charge of vagrancy while police are seeking another who escaped after the pair were discovered prowling around parked autos in Park square last night by police of the Rock Day station.

The arrested man, Michael Lyons, of Bradford, at West End, surrendered after one shot was fired but his companion fled, eluding pursuit.

THE NEW HAVEN R.R.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

I imagine I know how people used to feel when looking forward to a new Gilbert and Sullivan opera, back in the days after Pinafore had swept the country and people specialized about the announced "Mikado" or "Patience" or "The Pirates of Penzance." So people today who prefer a bright, intelligent, amusing theatre to a sentimental, sordid and easy one, are looking forward to "Let Them Eat Cake," which opens at the Shubert next Monday.

The comparison is not inexact. Messrs. Kaufman and Ryland are nearest to spirit to W. G. Gilbert of all our writers who work within his theatre and George Gershwin had a musical style of his own as unmistakable as the style of Sir Arthur Sullivan, though his range was not as wide nor his musical scholarship as deep as that astonishing man's.

There is another interesting comparison. The Savoy Opera Company, the creators of D'Oyly Carte, kept for years the same organization and in one opera after another Gilbert wrote similar parts for the same actors and actresses. The authors of "Let Them Eat Cake" have ventured a step further. They are not only reusing the same actors and actresses in the earlier production, Moore and Moran but in some parts. And finally, the success of "Let Them Eat Cake" came as near as possible to the success of "The Pirates of Penzance," a half century ago, when America, half a century ago, welcomed "Pinafore" when, again, it would anticipate us in its success.

As I wrote last spring in this spot, it is a pretty risky gamble. Producers have not yet had anything like the success of the first two, but the new piece, thus far, has been a success. The first production, "Let Them Eat Cake," was a success. The first production, "Let Them Eat Cake," was a success. The first production, "Let Them Eat Cake," was a success.

The title leads us to expect something about the depression. As anybody knows, the depression is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing.

The other reason is that the new piece will display President Winthrop's administration in a very favorable light. It is a very favorable light. It is a very favorable light. It is a very favorable light. It is a very favorable light.

What part there will be in all this for the new piece, "Let Them Eat Cake," is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing. It is a very real thing.

Excellent Singing Marks Verdi's "La Traviata" at Opera House

By MOSES SMITH

The Chicago Opera Company gave its best performance of the present engagement at the Boston Opera House in presenting Verdi's "La Traviata" last night. The opera was seen and heard by a crowd that filled almost every seat, and which indulged in long and frequent outbursts of applause.

The reason for the exceptional success lay in the nature of the opera. It is Verdi's best work in Verdi's earlier manner, frank and quickly written, making it possible to demand of the singers, with whom the company now touring the Opera House is comparatively well supplied.

Simultaneously, the work makes demands on the part of the conductor who can fill out the music with an equal passion as the orchestra. In the opening night, the singing was very good, almost uniformly so with the exception that it is scarcely necessary to single out names. This is the best of it, but that can be said to the general excellence of a cast, a large part of the credit on which Verdi for his most rugged music. Such music is almost inescapable of essential direction.

One should allude, in any event, to the unusually capable performance of Lovato, Claffaro, as the elder Germio. With a voice that was nothing more than routine, he displayed fine musicianship and sensitive artistry of an order quite rare on the operatic stage.

E. G. Robinson, Kay Francis Are Stars of 'I Loved a Woman'

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

BIG BUSINESS—even to the sight of a hero as an exile in Athens, Greece—" comes in for raps, along with drama, in "I Loved a Woman," currently featured at the Paramount and Fenway. It is a lavish panoramic narrative, stretching through more than a generation of time, and portraying the rise and fall of Edward G. Robinson as the boss of all the pock-nackers.

him away from the gangster vice and that he does it brilliantly. He is a first-class actor he is. He is admirably, and plays his rise and fall as masterfully as he did "Little Caesar."

Nis Francis likewise capably handles an unsympathetic role. But the real histrionic star of the piece, I offer, is Genevieve. She is a first-class actress, her characterization as the Nemesis superb. I got a thrill out of hearing her, in the scene where she dwains upon Robinson that he has lost both his woman-dustry. So he goes on, unafraid—he looks for a ten-year world war, and Armistice Day brings his house of cards crashing about his ears.

Fleeing prosecution for financial crookedness, he winds up in Athens, a doddering old man who doesn't even recognize his one great passion when she visits.

"I have waited 30 years for this moment!"

The dramatic gold of the film lies in that conception of the wife, hated, and in the refusal of the director to compromise as he ends his picture, bitterly,

Heavy is the burden of so episodic a tale; and it's the more to the glory of actors and Director Alfred Green that it gets and holds the interest. Robinson has another of the roles into which he was stepped in wear failings are wholly due to its theme. It is film narrative, and has few big emotional moments.

The companion picture is "Before Dawn," rather loosely devoted murder mystery thriller. Dorothy Wilson is seen as a psychic medium, Dudley Digges, doing a grand job as her father, Warren Gladstone.

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

BOSTON IS GETTING VERY COUNTRY-estate minded of late... it is becoming the vogue among debutantes to have at least one simple presentation in the country before returning to town for the gayer winter season.

One such simple party (a brilliant one socially) takes place this evening at the Manchester home of the Philip Stocktons in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Margaret, one of the season's Grade A buds.

Crowned in shiny white, as sweet and girlish as she is herself, Miss Peggy will greet her guests at the informal dance to which have been invited a group of debutantes, some of whom spend the year-round on the North Shore.

Four large dinner parties will take place before the dance and Miss Stockton will be the guest of honor with Miss Nancy Whitman, daughter of Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor Whitman, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Tuckerman at Hamilton.

The Tuckerman dinner will not be for debutantes exclusively... among their guests will be a few of the young married set, Mr. and Mrs. Forster (Mrs. Clark), Mr. and Mrs. Alva Crocker, 3d (Nancy Ladd), and the Misses Isabella Gardner, Phyllis Forbes, Harriet Moseley, Nancy Shaw, Nina Phillips, Barbara Young, Polly Loring, Hortense Clark, and Peggy Pardee, Jeanne Miller and Martha Allen of New York, house-guests of Miss Stockton's.

Another out-of-town guest will be Frances Parson of North Carolina, who has come north to spend the winter with her aunt, Mrs. Kenneth B. Parson of Weston.

George Parkman Denny's Plan Dinner

DR. AND MRS. GEORGE PARKMAN DENNY are having a dinner party at their Manchester residence India Meadow, at which Miss Charlotte, their budding daughter, will be hostess. Guests at the Denny party will include Christina Bartlett, Sally Curtis, Gertrude McGinley, Emily Dick, Lee McKean and two weekend guests of Miss Denny's, Nancy Cabot and Eleanor Shaw.

Among the men attending will be Francis Burr, Charles, Lyman, Samuel Cabot, Channing Frothingham, David Bangs, John Storey, Nelson Bartlett, John Hall, Jr., Edward Motley, Dana Hardwick, Henry Fuller, and Lewis Iselin.

Mrs. Samuel Warren will entertain a young group who will go on to the Stockton dance at her home in Essex and Mrs. George C. Lee is having a small party for her granddaughter, Marie Lee Turner, daughter of Mrs. Marie Frothingham.

Camilla Brown to Wed Next Month

THE LATTERS HAVE SENT out invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Camilla Brown, to Mr. Robert Warren Canfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Canfield of 122 East 61st Street, New York City, and Farmlands, Peckskill, N. Y.

The ceremony will take place at St. George's Church, October 14, at high noon, and will be followed by a small reception in the apartment of the bride's parents at River House, with breakfast at the River Club.

Miss Camilla did not make a formal debut as did her sister, Miss Halla, two seasons ago... her presentation was one of the largest balls of the winter at the Copley-Plaza and the ballroom was transformed into futuristic salons by no less artist than the late Joseph Urban.

Mrs. Brown was Helen Hooper of this town, a name renowned in this part of the country, and Cousin "Sam," better known as S. Hooper-Hooper, came out of his retirement to serve as head of the senior usher which made the ball seem very much like one of the assemblies, than which there was nothing more exclusive in this old city.

The Brown girls are not of the frivolous type... Halla has been a student at Bryn Mawr... both girls have lived in France and Camilla took part in the French plays presented by the Cercle Francaise of Harvard... the wedding will draw out its inner social circles of New York and Boston.

At Dinner

AT EAR HAROLD LAST week-end, Mrs. Llewellyn Barry of New York gave a dinner on Sunday for Miss Marie Genoux and Mr. Paul Bates of Boston, who announced their engagement last week at the Vanderbilt wedding reception on board the S. S. Rex.

Mr. Edgar Scott of Philadelphia was host at a lunch in the engaged couple's honor on Monday at the country estate at Cornwellton-Budens and Mr. Bates returned to Boston... next Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. "Jack" Whitney are entertaining for Miss Genoux and Mr. Bates at Narquoisset, R. I.

Makes Debut
THE INTRODUCTION OF Miss Margaret M. Swift to a society which was an event of yesterday in the form of a luncheon, was a gay and pleasant function, much enjoyed by a group of the season's debutantes including the young lady's cousin, Miss Marie Swift, who will also be making her bow before long.

Miss Swift looked charming in a hat and gown of eel gray, which suited her to perfection. She is given to good works, assisting at social welfare schemes, is a volunteer worker at the Boston Dispensary and also gave much of her time at the Children's Island Sanatorium during the summer months. Her elder sister, Miss Elizabeth F. Swift, was presented by her parents, Mrs. Howard F. Swift of Concord two seasons ago.

TENNIS ATTRACTED SOME of society's latest daughters to the Milton estate of Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes yesterday, and on the refreshment table the girls found, among other things, cider and doughnuts. The Boston American society photographer was just in time to snap a group enjoying a light lunch.

The girls pouring the cider are the Misses Patricia Baker and Miss Helen Cobb. Also in the group are the Misses Alice Bissell, Letitia Howe and Eleanor Poole, and they all had a good time. (Boston American Photo.)

Miss Swift Is Presented at Luncheon

LUNCHEON AT THE CONCORD Country Club yesterday marked the entrance into the social spotlight of Miss Margaret Swift, of Concord, who gave the luncheon in her daughter's honor. Serving as hostesses at the other luncheon tables were three other debutantes, Miss Martha Swift, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Swift, of Chestnut Hill, a cousin of yesterday's debutante, Miss Jean Gordon, daughter of Mrs. Conrad P. Hatheway of Concord, and Miss Cynthia Hoar, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Hoar of Concord, all of whom have plans for their own coming out parties.

Miss Swift received her guests seated in a smart dress of eel gray with a matching hat and carrying contrasting fashions. She attended Concord Academy and the Chatham Hall School in Chatham, Va., and has been very much interested in social welfare work this past summer. At present she is doing volunteer work at the Boston Dispensary.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. HAROLD CHAFFOUCX of Marlborough, accompanied by Mrs. Albert C. Burgess of Commonwealth ave., are among the recent arrivals at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York and expect to remain there until Saturday.

MRS. PHILIP H. DECKER and her daughter, Miss Nancy Whitman, who is planning her own recognition not only in Junior League and Vincent Club productions, but also in professional engagements in New York, left Boston last week for a one trip to California, where they will visit in Hollywood.

Scientists are examining Martin Bodder, Tacoma, Wash., doctor, to determine why he suffers from excruciating pains like rheumatism, whenever he gets too near a radio. It would be more in the past for scientists to find out why someone suffers excruciating pains whenever they get too near a microphone.

Bodder has discovered that when he holds to a water faucet, or other wise grounds himself, the pain diminishes.

That is—except when hillbillies are on the air.

The Strange Case of Sharkey and His Metamorphosis

By AUSTEN LAKE

In keeping with the eccentric notions that have ruled Jack Sharkey's career, he is choosing the crack-pot character again instead of the sane dictates of a mature mind. For Jack, plentifully furnished with goods and money, could return to the life of a landed squire and become plain Mr. Joseph McCoy, citizen in ordinary, and devote the remainder of his life to cultivating his marginals and petunias or fiddling with his large library of picture puzzles.

Instead, now that his affairs have become mere back page miscellany with the shipping news and advertising index, he is electing to be Battling Siki, as was his nom de guerre during his days as an apprentice boxer from shipboard, and is moving backward toward his original beginnings and performing the basement smells and fetid odors of second-rate pugilism.

Perhaps Jack, Joe or Bat, whichever it is, has suddenly come to desire most the thing which, a brief interval ago, he valued least. For his contempt of public interest and his resistance of prying snoopers and curious folk who sometimes milled around him in the streets or paraded past his home, caused him to build a high brick wall around his grounds and a higher wall around his person. He had a yard full of dogs to guard the one and his chill violet eyes and sullen temper to defend the other, though I have sometimes suspected that Sharkey at heart is a timid soul who distrusts his own emotions and prefers to hide them under a surly exterior.

There was Leo Fohl, manager of the Red Sox during Bob Quinn's first year in Boston, who presented a sullen, pug-faced front to the world and literally hid inwardly for his lack of social instinct. His answers to questions of said fact you might suspect his hunger for fellowship, and night after night, during the training season at New Orleans, he would sit alone, glaring across the lobby and praying that somebody would have courage enough to break through his crust. I never met a more lonely soul, unless it is Sharkey.

The Human Killer Who Trained on Picture Puzzles

Sharkey is at the stage when the body resents the harsh discipline and spiritual drudgery necessary to keep fit. And I felt last winter when I visited his Chestnut Hill chalet in search of a homelike story and found him cramped over a huge picture puzzle, fitting the colored bits of wood together with his ham like hands, that he was allowing himself to sag. For he confessed, a little wistfully, that he spent most of his days and evenings putting these monies together, and he dragged down dozens of other boxes of puzzles that had been solved. "This one," he said taking up a handful of light-blue fragments, "Mrs. Sharkey and I worked over for a week."

For a fighting man, at the time supposed to be the world's most vicious mauler and a supreme physical animal, Sharkey was obviously domesticated. And the routine that took him away from the only spot he loved, had become increasingly distasteful. When he was, not long since, he remarked that he'd "be glad when this racket was washed up for good."

In athletic the body goes as the spirit. And no fighter could distrustably as rapidly as Sharkey seemed to do so in short a space and, from boxing's leading pug, resolve into a second-rate back who took successive lickings from a circus freak, a ring comic and a dry husk. Sharkey has sagged physically no doubt, but I suspect that the roots of his collapse are set in that fatal accident which cost the life of his stalwart and protegee, Ernie Schaaf, who died from heavy sledgings from Max Baer's and Primo Carnava's fists six months since.

The vision of Carrera clubbing down on the base of Schaaf's brain and the slow rap-like slump of his fellow fighter to the apron of the ring may have haunted Sharkey no less than did Adolph Heuser, stable mate of both men. For Sharkey and Heuser were ringside witnesses, and the German, a mechanical and unflinching boxer, made a sacred resolve that he would quit the ring in the middle of the next lugging, which he did in the eighth round last Friday night at the Boston Garden while Lou Brouillard was hammering his face to a pulp.

They All Get Smart After a While

How much of Heuser's terror communicated itself to Sharkey, is a question that only Jack could answer. But if it should be plegmatic as a man as Heuser could be driven out of the ring by the memory of that scene, it is reasonable to believe that an imaginative type like Sharkey would be affected likewise. This makes it hard to understand why Jack is going after the crust and rinds of a business that now offers only lean pickings and lays him open to become one of those chuck-drunk goofies, who spend their middlemanhood in tap-tapping with a cane or going into sudden shafts and a shadow dance and the sudden clanging of an imaginary bell, that is not so much a bell as their own jangled nerves.

I cannot imagine that Sharkey is so sentimental that he wants to prove to his public, his public that he is so often distressed by bursts of emotional weeping and eccentric flashes, that he is basically the same Sharkey that whipped ... well lets see, who did he whip? ... Schmeling, Willis, Stirling, Scott, Risko, etc. And I'll wager that, before many hours, somebody's better judgment will take him over his crackpot decision and convince him that now is the logical time to retire to his marginals, his petunias and his picture puzzles.

Yet the Boston Garden is tendering him a modest offer, on the sentimental basis that Sharkey ought to wind up his ring career in the city where he began it. They will feed him an obscure, yet pretty tough young back of later choosing. There will not be much money, but money after all is no object where ring sentiment is concerned. A gesture, a final salute, a farewell to arms. Never mind the sake of money and convince him that now is the logical time to retire to his marginals, his petunias and his picture puzzles or you may be cutting paper dolls in some goofy hotel.

Son of Nation's Stroke Oar - Strokes Own Oar Himself

Now he is starting another season, his face to the bleak, blank wall of depression. There was only one other promoter, my time, who was as loyal by both word and deed. He was Tom Goodwin, a fight promoter who developed Sharkey, Maloney, Butler, Melio, Finnan and all the great fighters who came out of Boston.

Goodwin was loved, and for his great, match-making ability, Jack Conway will tell you that he was the best promoter in the greater Tex Rickard if he had been in the right spot—but for his charity. The man made his life out of thousands of dollars when he lived and died without a penny.

Bowser, though, has made his thousands and managed to live on some of them. When he first came to Boston, not so many years ago, he used to sit on an orange in front of the box-office of the Old Howard and try to convince the citizens to see a match between the awful Armenian and the terrible Turk.

The awful Armenian and the terrible Turk were married to keep the wolf from the door. Bowser was a man of the pasting shirt all the time, and his office was in his hat, and his outlook was most dismal. He had a young man named Gus Robinson, with a dirty beard and a change of shirt and underwear, appeared from Providence. He had a pair of socks, too, as a member, but he soon owned a wardrobe, which was complete in every detail.

Along all the wrestling promoters, this was the smartest one to realize that the time had come when the wolf of the Sharkey was had come to an end. He thought that a college boy, an American, would sweep the waterfronts right into a sea of blue and under a blue sky with a living link that would make the world a better place.

Numa Grapples McCoy in Semi-Final Mat Bout Tonight

By DAVID F. EGAN

He is very tough, and he is very tough, but Nick Lutze is favored to beat him tonight in the Garden.

Garden Program

MAIN BOUTS
Nick Lutze, California, vs. Charley Strack of Oklahoma. Thousands of persons are praying that he will be torn into little shreds bits when he puts up his hungry hands against Lutze.

OPENS MAT YEAR
Here Paul Bowser is conducting the trouble once in a while, for years and years, here Bowser has been inciting young men to brutality and brutality, and to something which bears a close resemblance to assault and battery. He has prospered and the neighborhood has prospered with him.

GRID BULLET

Grid Bullet - Makes Hit

By BILL CONNELL

A rough weekend is ahead for the school football leaders, with at least two possible champions in danger of falling in the whirl of tomorrow's games.

Some of the action for the "Grid" was in the form of a "preliminary" game between the Lynn English and the Lynn Latin schools.

After the game, the Lynn English team was victorious, and the Lynn Latin team was defeated.

LABOR RECORDS SHOW

815,000 Given Work
in August

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 20.—We must always understand the problems and difficulties involved in any course of action, if we are to act wisely and judge the chances of success. This is especially true of the current situation in business and industry.

Three items in the news suggest some points for consideration just now.

The first is the announcement that exports of American cotton have been good because the price of cotton in terms of gold is lower than it was last year.

In other words, foreign buyers are not so much interested in cotton as they were last year.

One New York department store alone has had an increase of a million and a quarter a year as a result of the NRA code. What effect this sharp rise in prices will have upon consumption is uncertain.

But in the department store volume of trade, but there is more than offset by a substantial rise during the month of August.

Whether this is due to an increase in buying power which was earned some time ago or whether it is due to a desire to anticipate inflation is uncertain. Fairly high rates have contributed to the rise in the department store volume of trade.

During the last three months a new factor has entered the picture with respect to department store sales. The object of this was to place in the hands of the consuming public greater buying power with a view to increasing the volume of trade.

He Made Russia a European Nation

There is scarcely an American who would not grasp the opportunity to sit in the quiet of Elwood and there read the challenge to patriotism contained in Lowell's Stanzas of Freedom. For example:

*"They are slaves who fear to speak
For the fallen and the weak,
They are slaves who dare not be
In the right with two or three,"*

Now such a man as that would seem
To have no part in God's great scheme.
Yet just before he died
A woman stooped and kissed his face
And prayed for mercy and for grace
And at his passing cried,
For he had plunged beneath a truck
To save her child from being struck.
